We are currently searching for the right crew to join our 2012 staff team.

Would you like to live a life of purpose and make a positive difference to life? Are you interested in conservation and working on practical projects with young and old to give something back to the Victorian High Country? Are you the kind of person who loves variety in a job and would love to learn skills from outdoor educator to mechanic, organic gardener to marketer, farmer to cook? Are you the kind of person who likes to give everything you do a “good hard crack” and make the most of every situation? Are you interested in learning how to live a sustainable life based on pioneer skills without electricity? Would you like to live in a home where access is by flying fox and you live on one of the most stunning river flats in Australia? Would you like to work with like-minded enthusiastic and energetic people on one of the most exciting outdoor education and conservation projects in Australia?

Then come and experience a year like no other and be set up with skills to take you anywhere in life. Wollangarra is a non-profit organization with our motto being “Practical Conservation through Outdoor Education”. We run programs for 13-22 year olds and the staff lives in a beautiful homestead on a river flat nestled in the Macalister River Gorge. It is an isolated community and we live a pioneer lifestyle with no electricity.
